Classic cuisine

A traditional kitchen with a taste of the contemporary

Steding Interiors and Joinery is a business partnership built on a foundation of strong moral principles, high standards and great expectations.

With the skill, craftsmanship and appreciation for quality and detail that were acquired and developed in Europe, they have the knowledge and ability to bring to clients something unique, exquisite and, more importantly, exactly what they want.

The kitchen that Steding Interiors and Joinery had to work with lacked space, storage and was tired. While it was cosy, it certainly wasn't the homeowners' dream kitchen. The clients wanted a traditional kitchen in the Steding Landhaus design style.

Made out of solid timber, the cabinets will stand the test of time and will survive a growing family. The colours chosen for the kitchen cabinets attract the natural light that flows through the window and makes the kitchen come to life.

Using natural materials throughout the design made this kitchen unique and balanced out the appliances that are all the latest models. Wood has been used in different shades on the floor, the benchtops and the window frame, which look fantastic and keep to the traditional style of the kitchen.

A gas hob and a stainless-steel refrigerator have been used in the kitchen to harmonise with the classic look while providing a contemporary feel, and giving the clients all the comforts of a modern house with the design they wanted.

Overall, the kitchen has been transformed into a modern design with classic trimmings that any family would be happy to prepare a meal in.
