

IT'S PERSONAL

The owner of this kitchen has left her mark

Doing away with a dated laminate kitchen was an easy choice for the owner of this home who was inspired by English-style architecture to build a new room that reflects her personal taste. With the design and build team at Steding Interiors & Joinery on board for the project, the kitchen she had long imagined was able to become a reality.

Having a focused look driving the design allowed the owner to put her stamp on the project and Steding Interiors & Joinery was more than happy to work alongside its client to achieve the desired outcome. This was done with face-framed cabinetry with vertical lines that descend through to the floor for the unique appearance of a freestanding piece of furniture as opposed to built-in cabinetry, an aesthetic in keeping with the chosen style. The kitchen was then hand-painted by the owner for a homely finish.

As the owner was an integral part of its creation, the kitchen is a successful collaboration between the client and the design-and-build team of Steding Interiors & Joinery — it's a custom-designed room that's truly what the owner envisaged. KBQ

The large overhead appliance cabinet with woven mesh doors allows easy access for everyday use while keeping the kitchen benches clear.

We love the contrast between the muted grey tones of the cabinetry and benchtops and the warmth of the American oak timber floors.
